Be a Smart Tanner

Since it is estimated that 30 million Americans are indoor tanners it is crucial to exercise smart tanning. The most important thing to remember when you are using indoor tanning beds: learn how not to burn! Smart tanners begin with a base tan and use sun block out of doors.

Different Lotions for Different Tans

Everyone has their own tanning regimen and it is important to find the solution that fits your skin type and tanning needs:

Sunless or self tanning lotions are very effective and most popular. These products produce color just an hour after application. The active ingredient in these products is dihydroxyacetone (DHA) and has been shown by the FDA to be safe.

Bronzers color the skin with water soluble dyes. They usually come in a gel form and produce a brown color immediately. Use these products as needed; when you wash they will fade.

Tan Accelerators contain a natural enzyme promotes melanin when exposed to sunlight.

Tanning Pills help to promote tanning in your skin by using natural vitamins (Beta-carotene, antioxidants Vitamins C and E). The tanning pills sold here do not contain canthaxanthrin which is banned from sale in the U.S.

Moisturizers and skin cream play an important part of any tanning program so don't forget to visit our Skin Care and Moisturizer pages for more healthy products for your body.
